WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOW IN TODAY'S TRADE

But Rebounded Sentionally in Last Hour of Day's Session

BULLETIN
Chicago, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Wheat prices crashed down below the dollar mark today in a panicky drop five cents below yesterday's figures and then as sentionally rebounded in the last hour of trading to finish at 98 1/2 cent decline to 98 cent advance.

The midseason prices were the lowest for this season and below any offers at this time of year in many seasons. March futures dropped as low as 98 1/2 cents a bushel, and May sold down to $1.02 1/2. The final quotations were: March $1.04 1/4; May 1.06 1/4 to 1/2; July 1.10 1/4 to 1/2 and September $1.13 1/2 to 1/4.

The trade generally attributed the spectacular break to the refusal of the Farmers National Grain Corporation to purchase cash wheat from other holders than cooperatives affiliated with it. Quoted statements by Alexander Legge, Chairman of the Farm Board, were construed as indicating the board was unconcerned with grain after it passes from the hands of cooperators into the hands of operators.

Corn, oats and rye tumbled along with wheat to new bottoms, but all climbed back near yesterday's closing levels in the final spurt.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Wheat growers of the middle west turned to the Federal Farm Board for aid again today as a result of the market crash yesterday which sent wheat prices here to the lowest they have been for 16 years.

Prices went down from three to eight cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade, America's most important grain market, as dollar a bushel wheat became an actuality in Kansas City and Duluth. The crash, comparable in its widespread effects to the stock market crash of last fall, was laid to the lack of buying power rather than a dumping of holdings or bear attacks from speculators working against the market.

The wheat farmers, who received some consolation from the statement of Chairman Alexander Legge of the Federal Farm Board that the farmer with wheat to sell who is a member of a cooperative grain organization affiliated with the newly created wheat stabilization corporation had little to fear, blamed the speculators for the crash, as did the grain cooperative groups.

Board's 'Foes' Blamed
John Vescey, president of the Southwest Wheat Growers' Association, said "manipulations of speculators who oppose the Farm Board principle are responsible for the crash." He added that he believed the present decline would be of short duration because of the small supplies still remaining on the farms.

The Federal Farm Board took its first move to prevent a collapse in the wheat market several weeks ago when the wheat advisory committee met here and organized a wheat stabilization corporation provided for under the Federal Agricultural Marketing Act. The corporation immediately bought, through affiliated cooperative organizations, large amounts of surplus wheat to hold and sell at its own risk with funds from the Federal Farm Board. Wheat went up for a time, but soon began to decline again.

Many cooperative organizations were reported buying vast quantities of the grain yesterday with the result that many looked for a sharp rise in the market soon.

LEGGE IS HOPEFUL
Washington, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Hope that the wheat surplus problem would be solved before the advent of the winter wheat crop in June, was voiced by Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board in a statement here.

He termed the drop of wheat to $1.04 in Chicago yesterday, "not so good," and said no one can tell whether the bottom had been reached.

"Anything is possible," he said when asked whether the stabilization corporation would go beyond co-operatives in purchase of wheat should the price continue to fall.

Congressional farm leaders today came to the aid of the wheat market by giving assurances they would speedily pass any further appropriations for the Federal Farm Board if needed.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER DIXON MAN INJURED

Three Automobiles In Crash At DeKalb Saturday Eve

Miss Marguerite Buckaloo, 19-year-old daughter of Allan Buckaloo, DeKalb clothing store manager and former resident of Dixon, was painfully injured Saturday night about 10:30 in an automobile accident, three miles west of DeKalb on the Lincoln Highway. Three cars figured in the crash, two being damaged beyond repair. The three cars contained ten people, four of whom escaped with minor injuries.

Miss Buckaloo was rushed to the Glidden hospital at DeKalb where it was found she was suffering from fractures of the pelvic bone and other injuries. The pelvic bone was cracked in three places and she will be under a physician's care for weeks. Harrison Sittler, driver of the car in which Miss Buckaloo was a passenger also suffered a fracture of the pelvic bone. George Rowe of Chicago and Miss Ione Hess of Rockford, passengers in the same car were unhurt.

Sittler is said to have been driving at a high rate of speed and attempted to pass a Ford coupe, both being headed for DeKalb. Pulling out of traffic, Sittler discovered another car coming directly toward him. He then attempted to regain his position in the east bound lane of traffic with the result that he crashed into the Ford which was turned over in a ditch and the west bound car was also thrown from the highway when it was struck by Sittler's car which spun around on the paving after the crash.

SENATORS ARE SUSPICIOUS OF BEING TRAILED

Side Door Of Capitol Is Locked: Strangers Are Watched

BY PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Precautions beyond those of wartime have been put into effect in the Senate wing of the United States Capitol because of complaints of numerous Senators that they are being trailed by mysterious spies, the United Press learned today.

A special squad of plain-clothes men has been organized by David S. Barry, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, to police the galleries and lobbies and an investigation has been ordered by Republican Floor Leader Watson.

The complaining Senators believe the snoopers may have a connection with the recent charges made in the Senate against the prohibition personnel. There also are reports that the spies are trying to ascertain if Senators personally are living up to the prohibition law.

Only One Entrance
The side door of the Senate wing has been closed and locked so that all those who enter must come through a single main entrance where a policeman always has been stationed. The Senate's own detectives follow any strangers who enter.

From time to time Senators have charged that their offices were ransacked or that they were being subjected to espionage, but never in recent years has it been found necessary to establish a counter-espionage system.

Several weeks ago Senator Borah, Rep., Idaho, who charged the prohibition enforcement personnel was "bad from top to bottom," said he believed his office was being watched. Later Senator Wheeler, Dem., Mont., who joined Borah in his charges, made a similar complaint. Both offices are in the Senate Office Building nearly a block from the Capitol itself.

Denial By Mitchell
At that time Attorney General Mitchell emphatically denied his department was doing the sleuthing and said such spying would be "unthinkable."

The counter-espionage was ordered after Watson himself had reason to believe a mysterious stranger was hanging around the door of his office, which is in the Capitol, adjoining the Senate chamber. Other Senators have made similar complaints.

"I have ordered an investigation," Watson told the United Press today. "I do not wish to say anything more about it now, but I'll tell you frankly I am opposed to that gumshoe sort of thing and I intend to go to the bottom of it."

"I will have something to say when my investigation is completed,"

OFFICERS TWO STATES SEARCH FOR KIDNAPERS

Daring, Brainy Gang Is At Work In St. Louis Neighborhood

St. Louis, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Officers of two states today searched for the master minds of a daring kidnaping ring which abducted Charles W. Pershall, wealthy Granite City, Ill., chain grocer and banker, within two blocks of his home last week, held him captive two days and released him on payment of a sum reputed to be $40,000.

It was the second gang playing the ransom racket as a means of livelihood to be uncovered here within a week, the other, described by police as the "Gas House Mob," being broken up through 12 arrests which followed a raid on a St. Louis county resort and the rescue of Jacob Hoffman, a bookmaker, from his underground "home."

Three others, all bookmakers and gamblers, have been kidnaped since January and their donation for personal freedom was said to have totaled $73,000.

Unwilling Go-Between
Pershall's release was engineered by George O. Blockburger, Granite City bondsman and real estate agent, who declared he was an unwilling go-between. First denying any knowledge of the ransom racket, Blockburger finally confessed to Chief of Detectives Kaiser he had paid $40,000, raised by members of Pershall's family, for the banker's freedom. Pershall was said to have been blindfolded.

Kaiser declared members of the second outlaw group, whom he described as hangers-on of Madison County, Ill., gambling resorts, are brainier and more daring than the "Gas House Mob."

"This is a real mob," Kaiser said. "The others were just a bunch of punks trying to steal this gang's thunder. This gang, I am convinced kidnaped 'Mulepoke' Fritz in January."

First of Victims
Fritz was the first of the gamblers to be held for ransom. He was reputed to have cleaned out a dice game in East St. Louis a few days before he was abducted and police believe his friends paid upwards of $40,000 for freedom.

Pershall's family continued their denial of the banker's kidnaping despite police opinions and Blockburger's confession. Pershall, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, left Sunday shortly after Blockburger's arrest, on a combined business and pleasure trip to Little Rock Ark.

Warrant Sustained: Bott Found Guilty

Judge William Leech in the County Court yesterday afternoon overruled the motion of Attorney H. A. Brooks to impound the evidence seized in a raid conducted at the home of Fred Bott on November 1, 1929, when officers from the sheriff's office seized four gallons of liquor. The defense spent a half day arguing before the court in an effort to have the evidence impounded on the grounds that Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson, also Town Clerk, was not legally empowered to issue the search warrant, setting forth the charge of incompatibility of his two offices.

Throughout the trial of the case during yesterday afternoon the witnesses for the state were interrupted by the defense counsels' continued objections, but with the testimony before the jury, that body deliberated but 40 minutes in considering their verdict. Bott was charged in the information with selling and transporting intoxicating liquor and possession of intoxicating liquor. In their verdict the jury found him guilty of all three counts contained in the indictment.

Hoover Appeals To "People Back Home"

Washington, Feb. 25.—(AP)—President Hoover in what he described as an appeal to the "people back home" today urged that they throw their influence behind the administration in an effort to curtail expenditures other than those contemplated by budget recommendations.

Expanding a statement issued at the White House after a breakfast conference yesterday between the Chief executive and Congressional leaders, Mr. Hoover said that only a small percent of the proposal to spend money was originating from members of Congress.

On the other hand it was his opinion that the proposals were arising from groups all over the country. Many of the causes, he said, eventually should be undertaken and many no doubt would be undertaken sometime in future years.

Auto Wrecks Trains; Eleven Die

This first picture, rushed by NEA Service, Inc., to the Dixon Telegraph shows two of the wrecked Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee electric line passenger coaches after they were tossed into a ditch when a motorist endeavored to beat the train, a Chicago bound limited, to a grade crossing. Eleven persons lost their lives and one hundred or more were injured. A freight train, advancing in the opposite direction, jammed the auto between both trains. Most of the eleven dead were found in the coach pictured on its side.

LIQUOR TRUCK WILL BE HELD, SHERIFF SAYS

Miller Firm In Determination To Confiscate Big Truck

The first word to reach the office of Sheriff Ward Miller with reference to the abandoned truck containing almost 500 gallons of alcohol, seized by deputies on the south edge of Rochelle city limits on State highway route 70, early Saturday morning, was received late yesterday afternoon. According to a telephone message received by Sheriff Miller the Dodge-Graham truck which is held, is the property of a Streator sales agency, which claims to hold a mortgage amounting to more than $400 on the truck.

In response to a question as to whether the truck would be surrendered to a friend of the Streator dealer, Sheriff Miller replied: "Try and get it."

The truck is securely locked in a local garage with strict orders not to be released. The license on the truck was issued to Cuilla Cosmo, 1003 Everett street, Streator. It is the first motor vehicle used in the transportation of liquor during Sheriff Miller's administration against which confiscation proceedings are to be taken.

Must Produce Driver.
At the sheriff's office today it was stated that the truck would not be released to any Dixon friends of the agency claiming to hold the mortgage, or to the owner, but that it would be necessary to produce the driver of the truck who abandoned it last Saturday morning about 2 o'clock on the route 70 paving and then leaped into a high-powered coupe which followed the heavy cargo of alcohol, and made his escape.

Word reached the sheriff's office over the week end, said to have come from Rockford, to the effect that the driver of the truck believed that his load was about to fall into the hands of hi-jackers, which accounted for his hasty action. He did not suspect that officers were in pursuit but feared that he might meet with rough handling at the hands of hi-jackers and hastily decided to abandon the valuable cargo of alcohol.

ELEVEN OTHERS, WRECK VICTIMS, ARE NEAR DEATH

Reckless Youth Is Held Responsible For No. Shore Ry. Crash

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The reckless driving of a youth, hurrying home from a "date," was blamed today by railroad officials for the North Shore interurban wreck that killed eleven persons and injured more than 100 others Sunday night.

Edward R. Egger, Chicago, Chief Investigator for the railway, placed the responsibility upon Norman Shinn, 21, Milwaukee, who tried to beat the five car Chicago-bound train to a highway crossing. Shinn's car was demolished as the speeding train struck it, killing him and his companion, Frank Tomczak. The wreckage of the automobile, ground under the wheels of the passenger train, threw it from the track and shunted it into a north-bound freight.

In addition to the North Shore investigation, Kenosha county and state authorities today attempted to find causes for the wreck. Coroner Anthony B. Schmitz impeached a jury and announced an inquest would be held but set no date for the hearing. Members of the legislative interim Commission on Traffic began an investigation for the state.

After preliminary questioning of survivors Egger issued the following statement: "It is merely another instance of a reckless automobile driver disregarding plainly marked railroad crossings and signals and attempting to beat the train to the crossing."

Shinners was hurrying home to Milwaukee after a visit at the home of his fiancée, Jeanette Bohanan, 19, who lives near here. Speeding, according to witnesses, Shinners swung his car around another automobile waiting at the crossing for the trains to pass.

Hundreds of passengers were buried beneath the mass of wreckage. Eleven persons, including those in the automobile, were killed outright. Doctors today held slight hope for eleven others of the injured.

Brooklyn Official's Trial In Co. Court

Granville Miller, thistle Commissioner of Brooklyn township, was on trial before a jury in the County Court today, charged with the sale and possession of intoxicating liquor. The selection of the jury occupied the greater part of the morning session, the defense exhausting the regular panel and additional talesmen were required. Attorneys H. A. Brooks and Edward Jones were appearing for Miller.

Early in the winter a jury in the County Court disagreed when Miller was tried and Judge Leech granted a motion for a new trial. Several witnesses from the vicinity of Compton were present in the County Court today to testify in Miller's behalf.

SPRING, WINTER PLAY TAG: TAKE TURNS BEING IT

"April" Showers Fell In Central States: Snow In Denver

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Spring and winter played hide and seek in the west and mid-west today, taking turns at being "it."

Thunder showers typical of April fell in the central states, while a driving snow followed a 30 degree drop in temperatures in the Rocky Mountain region.

Chicago's rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, came early today after a curtain of fog swept over the city as winds veered and sent temperatures down 9 degrees from yesterday's maximum of 63.

At Champaign, Ill., basketball players for the University of Illinois and the University of Wisconsin asked time out repeatedly last night because of the heat and humidity.

Kansas City's hottest February day in 42 years ended with a severe thunder and lightning storm last night. Thermometers had registered 81 degrees before the cooling rain began to fall.

Workers in St. Paul offices complained of July "stickiness" before a shower cooled the city.

Fruit trees are in bud in many areas and a sharp drop in temperatures will ruin crop prospects, orchardists said.

The sun was obscured for the first time in three weeks at Denver when the snow came. Mercury there fell from 60 to below freezing.

THREE BANDITS TRIED TO GET INJURED THUG

Invade Hospital Where Chicago's Toughest Lay Crippled

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Twenty-seven bullet holes today scarred the white walls of the hospital room where Frank McElrane, "Back of the Yards" beer baron and notorious as Chicago's toughest gangster, fought a gun battle with three racketeers who trapped him as he lay with a broken leg last night.

Snarling hatred of his enemies and defiance to police, McElrane held on to life grimly today although three bullets from his would-be assassins' guns reached their mark. One pierced his back. Another tore through his thigh. A third disabled the wrist of his gun hand.

Propped on an elbow, heaving against the weights that held his plaster-cast encased leg in the air, the ally of "Spike" O'Donnell pumped five shots from his automatic when the trio of unannounced visitors stepped into his room. Instantly the room echoed to the roar of guns until between thirty and forty shots had been fired.

True to Gang Code.
Bue McElrane, true to gangland's iron code, refused to tell who shot him. Even when police told him they were going to remove him to the Bridewell Hospital, which he said "means sure death for me," he stuck to his noncommittal answers.

Only because McElrane lived in constant fear of death and had smuggled a pistol into the hospital and kept it concealed under his pillow was the attempt at assassination frustrated, police declared.

"He shot first," they said. "That spoiled the aim of the others." Police Commissioner William F. Russell launched an investigation today to determine how the notorious gangster, who has been tried for several murders and earned the name of the "cruellest of the gangmen," managed to spend a month in the hospital without his identity becoming known.

He hobbled into the hospital, telling officials he was Charles Miller and that his leg had been shattered when his gun accidentally was discharged. It was not until police arrived after the gun battle that his story was fully proved.

About the time McElrane was battling his enemies in the hospital room, Joe Fallon, who killed Policeman John Ryan yesterday, died in the Bridewell Hospital from wounds inflicted by the Patrolman in a gun fight.

Fallon shot Ryan without warning when the latter attempted to arrest him for jumping bond on burglary charges. As Ryan fell he shot the fugitive five times. Fallon, with the aid of his sister and niece, stumbled into a taxicab and fled but was tracked down in another apartment by two squads of police bent on avenging their companion.

Fallon was dying when they arrived at his new hiding place. Fallon had a long criminal record.

BURY VICTIM'S BODY.
Gary, Ind., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The reason Paul Perconti failed to telephone his wife last Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock was because he was dead; shot to death; a victim of Duqueland gangs.

They found his body late yesterday, buried in a quick lime crypt sealed with freshly poured cement under the floor of an abandoned barn 12 miles east of Gary. The finding of Perconti's bloodstained cap and revolver had prompted the search in that neighborhood.

Always when absent from home Perconti telephoned his wife hourly. When he failed to call last Tuesday afternoon, his wife feared he had been killed. A few hours later she notified police of his absence.

Perconti was known as the leader of a gang reputedly active in the transportation of alcohol. He was the second of three brothers to die by violence. His brother Joseph was slain a year ago in a feud arising from alcohol distribution. The third brother, John, has been hunted nearly two years to answer charges connecting him with the Billy Ranieri kidnaping.

Slayer Of Eleven
Found To Be Sane

New York, Feb. 25.—(UP)—"Texas" Jim Baker, self-credited with eleven murders by poison and gun, bored by almost ceaseless police interrogation, found solace today in the knowledge that he had been adjudged legally sane.
Irrked by hints that he was perhaps demented, Baker, or Bakerlein, his real name, went to his cell in the Tombs prison "flats" the section reserved for "distinguished" prisoners, pleased that Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, Tombs physician, and Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to District Attorney Gravin, had found him mentally normal.

Dr. Snook's Appeal
To High Court Lost

Washington, Feb. 25.—(UP)—James Howard Snook today lost his last hope of escaping by legal means execution in the electric chair at Columbus, Ohio, Friday, for the murder of Theora Hix.
The Supreme Court refused to review Snook's appeal after the condemned man's attorneys made a last minute appeal for a stay. The Governor of Ohio has refused a reprieve and today's action of the highest court virtually kills the former Ohio State University Professor's last hope.

Honor Birthday Of Mrs. C. W. Plock

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Plock entertained at their home Saturday evening in honor of the 73rd birthday anniversary of Mr. Plock's mother, Mrs. C. W. Plock. The house was decorated in true patriotic spirit, with the national colors displayed in honor of the birthday of the Father of his Country. Ferns and cut flowers also lent charm to the scene. George and Martha Washington, in full Colonial dress, with powdered wigs, graced the occasion.

The evening was spent with cards, music and the singing of favorite songs. Master Donald Klosterman, 5 years old, sang a number of songs, accompanied by Reon Glessner, who also favored with songs and music, which were much enjoyed. Miss Ruth Klosterman favored with several fancy dances.

At midnight a bountiful supper was served. The birthday cake was especially attractive, being a three tier angel food cake, decorated with fancy icing in the shapes of cherries and cherry branches, surmounted by one large candle. Mrs. Plock received many beautiful gifts and birthday cards.

Those present besides the guest of honor were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Geldmacher, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Plock, Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Miller, Cedar Falls, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Plock and sons Louis and Merle, and Miss Marion Trouth, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Klosterman and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Plock, Mr. and Mrs. Flave W. Balloting on candidates was part of the regular work.

Members of the Relief Committee reported many calls on the sick and distribution of clothing to needy families.

The Corps voted to present a flag to the Episcopal church in the near future.

Mrs. Alice Bennett gave a very interesting report of the presentation of a beautiful flag to Boy Scout Troop, No. 89, of the Christian church.

Miss Cora Persons told of the Corps presenting a bronze tablet of Lincoln's address to the new high school.

It was the pleasure of all to have with them one of the members, Mrs. Nina Grimes of Kalamazoo, Mich. She spoke of the pleasure it afforded her to meet with the Corps again.

Mrs. Clara Goodrich, past president of Dixon Corps, then gave a short talk, praising the corps for the splendid work they are doing. Comrade Johnson then spoke for the Comrades present and gave a very interesting talk about Washington, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

A playlet, "When Auntie Went Shopping," was given. Mrs. Hilma Helms as Auntie, Mrs. Anna Street, Mrs. Emmaline Frisby and Mrs. Louise Holderman as her nieces, appeared before the audience in "ye old time dresses" with Auntie telling of her thrilling experience while shopping, caused much laughter and pleasure to all present.

Mrs. Herbert Harms, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Florence Onnen, sang very beautifully, two numbers, "When You Come to the End of the Day," and "When Two Eyes of Blue Come Smiling Thru at Me." The concluding number on the program was an interesting reading, "The Character of George Washington," by Mrs. Lella Bush was greatly enjoyed by all.

The Corps meeting then closed in regular form, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Two Past Presidents, Mrs. Clara Goodrich and Mrs. Nellie Eastman served tea and wafers at a very pretty appointed table decorated in keeping with Washington's birthday. ### Sunshine Class Had Happy Banquet

The get-together banquet and social of the Sunshine class of St. Paul's Lutheran church, held at the church Thursday evening, was a happy affair in every way. While a march was played by Mrs. Carrie Bremer, chairman of the music committee, fifty members of the class and friends entered the banquet room, where Rev. L. W. Walter said grace before the company sat down to the tastefully decorated tables. The class colors, light blue and gold, were in evidence in the small paper mats under the lighted candles; clusters of United States flags were on all the tables—reminders of the approach of Washington's birthday; and the napkins bore tiny patriotic emblems. The speakers' table was designated by a beautiful bouquet of carnations—the class flower.

The Golden Rule Class rendered very efficient service, and the menu was illustrated by the Bishop's grace: "We thank Thee, Lord, for these bounteous provisions of Thy Providence and our abundance capacity to receive them."

The class president, Mrs. Anna Rees, had charge of the program which was as follows:

Vocal Solos by Mrs. Eva Peterson, "In the Garden" and "In the Gloaming," with Miss Wingert, pianist.

Mary L. Kay, the old teacher, welcomed every one present and gave some personal reminiscences.

Mrs. Nettie Coakley, the faithful class treasurer, gave a reading titled "Crooked Stick," and responded to an encore with "Words of Cheer."

Rev. Walter delightfully entertained with amusing anecdotes and important truths.

Dorothy Erey favored the company (who applauded her) with two instrumental solos, "Falling Waters" and "Beautiful Star of Heaven."

W. E. White's address was from the Superintendent's standpoint, giving helpful suggestions for promoting greater diligence and advancement in various lines of Sunday school work.

After the pastor's announcements and benediction, the teacher gratefully accepted the flowers which were long wilted, but their fragrance will linger in her memory as a memento of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the Sunshine class.

Eightieth Birthday Celebrated Sunday

About twenty-five of the relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Missman Sunday, to assist in celebrating the eightieth birthday of Mr. Missman.

The dinner tables were laden with a bountiful supply of food, and baskets of fruit and flowers. After partaking of the delicious dinner, the guests assembled in the living rooms and enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon in recalling the early days in the lives of the family.

Mrs. Merion Maben related the following quotation: "He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty, or failed to express it; who has looked for the best in others, and given the best he had."

The brother and sisters of Mr. Missman were, Milton, wife and daughter Leva, Mrs. Hannah Heckman and Annie Moore. There were four generations present. The oldest son, Arthur Missman, wife, son Floyd and daughter, Mrs. Nellie Hoyle, husband and son Richard, son Oscar Missman, wife and daughter Bessie. Their son Clifford who is attending the University of Illinois could not attend. Mrs. Joe Brierton and sister Minerva Phillips, Wallace Goodyear and sister, Mary Goodyear.

Mrs. Hattie Olds and Mrs. Merion Maben and William Nixon joined with the happy group. Their pastor, Rev. A. T. Stephenson, and wife, called and offered congratulations.

Miss Bessie Missman read the following appropriate verse: "Why should we count our life by years, Since years are short and pass away, Or, why by fortune's smiles or tears, Since tears are vain and smiles decay; O! count by virtues—these shall last, When life's lame footed race is o'er, And these when earthly joys are past, May cheer us on a brighter shore." All joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie."

Mr. Missman received potted plants and other gifts as mementos of the occasion.

"Crown of Life," Beautiful Cantata, Presented Sunday

On Sunday evening at St. Paul's Lutheran church, under the very efficient direction of Mrs. E. M. Goodsell, the adult choir with the assistance of a few other artists, about thirty in all, presented to a large audience the very beautiful cantata, "The Crown of Life," by George Nev-

The solos and choruses were each one sung with expression and true musical interpretation. At the conclusion of the service Mrs. Goodsell, who has so capably directed St. Paul's choir for the past twenty years, announced to the choir members that she intended to take a rest of indefinite length from her duties as choir leader. Only one or two persons had been aware of her intention but they had procured on behalf of the choir members, a gorgeous basket of flowers which they presented to Mrs. Goodsell, with their love, and all preceptibly evidenced their regret at her announcement that she for the present would suspend her activities in the choir. All Dixon and vicinity are aware of Mrs. Goodsell's excellent capabilities as a musician and an artist of the highest rank.

Miss Genevieve Randall Was Honored

On Saturday evening Mrs. Melvin Burgard, Miss Julia Ford, and Miss Leota Carroll were hostesses at a delightful party, which honored Miss Genevieve Randall, who in the near future is to become the bride of Crawford Thomas. There were guests for three tables of Keeno Whist, and everyone present spent an enjoyable evening. Mrs. Monte Weeks was presented the favor for high score, and Miss Stella Mae Weigle was presented the favor for second honors. Delicious refresh-

A sidelight on the subject is the fact that this academy in 1918 electing Queen Marie of Rumania a "corresponding member."

A generation ago Madam Louise Bertaux annoyed the academy by getting into the running for a seat. The committee in charge simply overlooked her and she received no votes.

IGNORING A GOLD MINE.

From the looks of the publishers' catalogs, every literate American over 20 years of age who owns a typewriter is spending all of his spare time writing novels.

New books are pouring out in a flood that seems to get deeper as time goes on. No living mortal can remember the names of all the new books brought out in the past year—or the names of the new authors. Whether or not any big percentage of these new books is being sold, at least they are being printed.

The surprising thing is that so many of them are good. We have left the sugar-sweet romances far behind, and heavy literature is breaking about us in waves. Let no man say again that the American public never stops to think. Apparently that is all it is doing.

Yet there is a peculiar thing about these books. If you survey the field, you may presently find yourself wondering if American novelists are not somewhat blind.

What are the current best-sellers?

Well, there is a book tracing the wanderings of a Florentine coronet down through the ages. There is a book about love and cocktails among New York newspaper folk. There is the life story of a prize fighter. There is the story of a poetic young artist who goes to New York from the raw middle west in search of beauty. There are two or three stories about hectic goings-on among the landed gentry of England. There are sundry detective stories and a flock of war novels.

Many of these books are very well done. Yet not one of them plumbs the depths of current American life. Not one of them has taken advantage of the amazing, absorbing fables that the nation constantly produces. A daily newspaper comes closer to giving a picture of "the American scene" than the reviewers talk about so much than do any of her novels.

American life, as it is today, offers one of the most interesting and exciting fields any creative writer could ask for.

A hundred novels could be written about Chicago. The automobile field around Detroit could inspire as many more. Pennsylvania's steel and coal district ought to draw the attention of novelists by the dozen. And what character in any novel is half as glamorous, as interesting and compelling, as such Americans as—for instance—Harry F. Sinclair, Al Capone, E. L. Doheny, Henry Ford, Clarence Darrow or William Hale Thompson?

But we don't get these things in our novels. We get studies of marriage, studies of Long Island society, studies of "the new woman," studies of night clubs, and the like. A gold-mine is awaiting exploitation, and our novelists are ignoring it.

The growth of literary activity in America is encouraging. But American literature will not come of age until writers generally look about them and turn their attention to the great, fundamental currents of American life.

WHY JAPAN WANTS BATTLESHIPS.

There are a lot of angles to the London naval conference that are a bit complicated.

There is, for instance, the proposal to abolish battleships. Japan objects to this; and until you look into the matter you may find the Japanese objection hard to understand. There is a simple explanation, however, which makes the Japanese position quite logical.

The explanation is this: neither Britain nor the United States possesses a naval base in the far east big enough to serve dreadnaughts. As a result, Japan knows that neither nation could ever force a big naval engagement in Japanese waters. Japan, in consequence, is secure from attack.

But if all battleships were abolished, the 10,000-ton cruiser would be the line-of-battle ship; and the British base at Hongkong and the American base at Manila are amply large enough for ships of this class. Under those circumstances, either nation could launch a naval attack on Japan from a point close to Japanese waters.

Japan, therefore, wants to retain the battleship. Her position is not hard to understand.

It is said that a day's fog costs London nearly a million pounds. The Chamber of Commerce ought to take steps against it.

Who can remember when a saloon used to be known as a "poor man's club"?

The trouble about flattering one's self is that someone is likely to knock you flat.

Some men are born peculiar and some cultivate sideburns themselves.

Consider the hen. If it only could learn what bricklayers get for laying a row of bricks!

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The animal crackers jumped from sight and every little Tynymite stood, wondering just what to do. They sure were in a fix. Said Scouty, "Well we are to blame for what has happened. 'Tis a shame. I fear the boy will think that this is just one of our tricks. 'Instead of feeling rather glad to see us, he'll think we are bad. Perhaps he'll even spank us. I am almost scared to stay. Within that box, I have a hunch, the lad was carrying his lunch. And we're the ones who let the little crackers get away."

Then Clowny jumped and said, "I fear it isn't safe to stay right here. Let's run and get away before the little boy awakes. We cannot bring the crackers back. The power to do that we all lack. It's almost night. We can get far before a new dawn breaks." "Mercy me, we cannot act so cowardly. YI

Gets Complete Relief From Terrible Gas Pains That Cut Like a Knife

Are Your Symptoms Like Hers?

HERE is the story of a woman that every sufferer of stomach troubles ought to make it a point to read. A victim of terrible agony for 10 years she tells about the simple treatment that ended all her troubles in just a short time.

Weak sluggish organs of digestion reflect themselves in sallow haggard faces.

Strong healthy organs of digestion reflect themselves in radiant youthful faces.

Like many local women, Mrs. Mary Ogle is so grateful for her release from a life of pain she wants everyone to be helped and so tells her story: "I have always said and always will say that Tanlac saved my life. Few people have suffered as I have with stomach troubles in the last 10 years. The gas nearly kills me. I would be deathly sick and in bed sometimes for weeks at a time. My stomach was sore all the time, the gas would form and collect right in the side and cut like a knife. I had to call in doctors. They said gall stones and gall bladder. Sour stomach and gases almost choked me to death and bothered my heart. Meat and potatoes were forbidden. I spent lots of money but my suffering increased instead of getting better. Certainly a harder task could not have been found for Tanlac, yet this medicine has succeeded and as I said, saved my life. My stomach troubles have yielded. I have a good digestion and best of all is relief from gases. I eat everything and gained so much in strength that I look like a different person. In best health in 10 years, that expresses it and tells the story of what Tanlac has done for me." Just the first dose or two of Tanlac will bring relief that will amaze you. Tanlac is a real medicine based on modern medical science. Like everything good it has its weak and ineffective imitations. So do not accept a substitute. Tanlac must help you or money back. At all druggists.

Famous Cattle To Be Sold May 16th.

Waterloo, Iowa, Feb. 25—(AP)—Dispersal of one of the best known Guernsey herds in America, that of the late Wilbur W. Marsh, Waterloo manufacturer and Democratic leader, was announced today for May 16 at Hinsdale, Ill.

The herd has been dominant in the American show ring for more than 20 years. In 1911 the Marsh barn contained 300 Guernsey cattle, most of them importations. About this time he purchased the herd of 42 cattle belonging to J. P. Morgan.

In 1911 with 10 head of cattle, a show ring record was established that is believed to stand to the present time. At seven major shows, including the National Dairy Show, the Marsh herd took every first place and the championship in the breed, with but one exception, a young calf placing second at the national.

Rose De Hourde, 59th, sold for $17,700 at auction, in 1917. Lilly of Iowa, 2nd, another of the herd, had a butter fat record of 998.4 in a year. Jimmie Lee, who first showed the Marsh cattle, is fitting the herd for its final appearance under the Marsh banner.

CHAPTER I

"A NOTE for you, Mr. Dundee, delivered by a snooty young chauffeur in a limousine and a plum-colored uniform," Mrs. Caroline Rhodes announced, when admitted to the choicest room on the second floor of The New Rhodes House, successor to the boarding house which had won sensational fame as the "Murder Mansion," the scene of two particularly horrible murders by strangulation.

"Thanks, Mother Rhodes!" Bonnie Dundee took the big square envelope and slit it open without due reverence.

"I hope it's not another warning that a murder is to be committed," Mrs. Rhodes commented. "Though if that note's from Abbie Berkeley, I wouldn't be a bit surprised to hear that she's yelling for help—and I can't say I'd be sorry either!" she added grimly.

"Whew! You are bloodthirsty!" the novice detective grinned at his landlady. "Sorry to disappoint you, Mother Rhodes, but this is nothing more exciting than a written confirmation of an invitation to spend a week-end at 'Hillcrest,' which, I take it, is the name of the Berkeley feudal castle. I ran into young Dick Berkeley on the street today and he very impulsively urged me to lend him the moral support of my presence over a week-end which he seems rather to dread. . . . But why all the animus against Abbie, and just who is Abbie?"

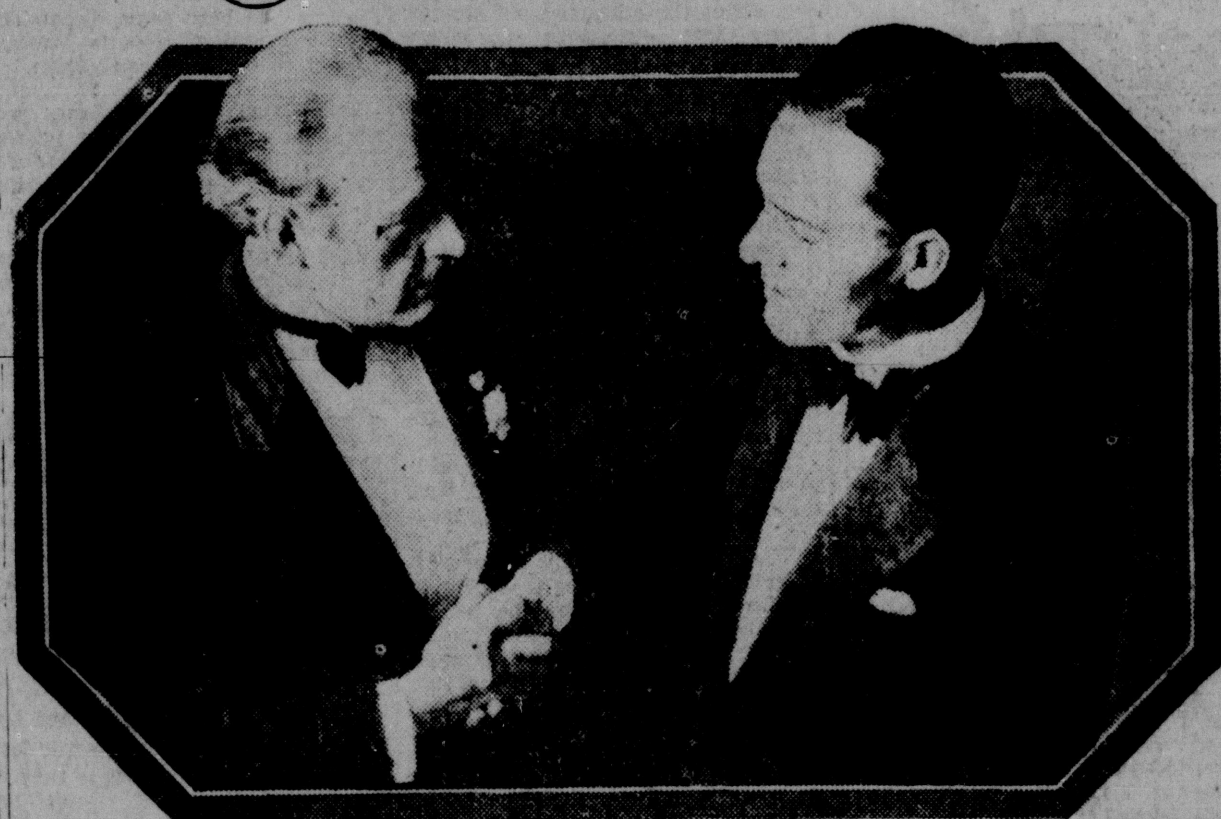

"Abbie is Abbie Berkeley, who used to be plain—and I mean plain!—Abbie Smith, before she married George Berkeley, who got to be a millionaire about 10 years ago," Mrs. Rhodes elucidated acidly. "How she got a fine man like George Berkeley is more'n I or anybody else can see, but get him she did, and lately she's been putting on dog like nobody's business! Spent a year in Europe with her oldest daughter, Clorinda, and then come trotting home with a penniless 'high society' woman from New York for a 'social secretary,' all primed to take Hamilton's social citadel by storm."

"How poetic you are, Mother Rhodes!" Dundee gibed fondly. "Has Hamilton a 'social citadel,' really?"

"I'm only quoting the society editor of The Morning News," Mrs. Rhodes defended herself. "She used those very words this morning in her write-up of the big dinner-and-dance Abbie Berkeley is giving tomorrow night. To meet Mr. Seymour Crosby of New York, Palm Beach and Newport," the landlady quoted further, in a bitterly miming voice. "Believe me, Mr. Dundee, if Hamilton's Big-Bugs have lowered themselves to accept one of Abbie Berkeley's invitations, it was out of curiosity to see this Mrs. Lambert and because somehow she's managed to get a real swell like this Mr. Crosby roped in to help Abbie's game along."

"JUST who is Mrs. Lambert?" Dundee asked cheerfully, as he set about packing his dressing.

*Recounted in THE AVENGING PARROT.

—and thus Bonnie Dundee met a man he would have traveled many miles to look upon. For the true story of Seymour Crosby and a certain night in London was one of a score of mysteries he would have sacrificed much to solve.

case for the week-end.

"Mrs. Letitia Lambert, of course. I guess everybody that can read has heard of the Lambert family," Mrs. Rhodes informed him scornfully. "Real society people since before the Revolution. This Mrs. Lambert was the beautiful Letitia Cavendish, who refused the hand of a prince and an earl to marry Van Rensselaer Lambert."

"As well she might, if he had a name like that," Dundee chuckled. "Still quoting the society editor, I suppose?"

"Well, if I am, I suppose she knew what she was talking about," Mrs. Rhodes retorted. "She had a big write-up of Mrs. Lambert when Abbie Berkeley and Clorinda brought her home with them from Europe, like a prize dog on a leash. If you ask me, I think Abbie Berkeley's got an awful nerve, hiring a social secretary who couldn't have been bribed to ask her to sit down at her table when she was queening it over New York society!"

"Slightly involved, but not entirely obscure," Dundee murmured. "Now, Mother Rhodes, be a lamb and help me check this junk to see if I have enough glad rags to last me over a Berkeley week-end."

Mrs. Rhodes bent over the dressing-case. "Tennis flannels. That's right! They've got a court. . . . Golf breeches, woolen stockings sports shirts. They'll be dragging you over to the Country Club to play golf and I'll bet my new fall hat Abbie'll apologize because their own private golf course ain't laid out yet! . . . What's this? Just a Tuxedo? Haven't you got a swallow-tail coat? I told you the big blow-out tomorrow night is to be formal. . . . Well, if you haven't, you haven't, and I guess they ought to be glad to have you, even in a business suit."

"What about a little low comedy to liven things up tomorrow evening? I might pin my detective badge on my vest and flash it nonchalantly—" Dundee suggested, his blue eyes wicked with amusement at his landlady's horror.

"Abbie Berkeley'd have her butler throw you out and then she'd dishonor Dick Berkeley for having invited such low-life scum," Mrs. Rhodes assured him.

"A crook disguised as a lady or a gentleman might pinch the fair Abbie's pearl necklace, and it would come in handy to have a detective on the scene," Dundee reminded her. "After all, I'll have to give Captain Strawn some excuse for being off duty for a whole week-end. Not that anything ever happens in this town, since Dan Griffin was removed from circulation," he added gloomily. "Not a single honest-to-God murder mystery for two and a half months. I've a good notion to move to Chicago!"

"Now who's bloodthirsty?" Mrs. Rhodes mocked. "And where's your bathing suit? There's a natural lake at Hillcrest that's been enlarged and deepened—"

"SWIMMING the last week-end in September," Dundee shivered in anticipation.

"Won't do any harm to put your bathing suit in," Mrs. Rhodes was implacable. She got the suit herself and tucked it in firmly. "If the temperature ain't below zero Abbie Berkeley will make you all try out her swimming pool, if she has to push you in."

"You do love Abbie, don't you?" Dundee grinned. "I take it she must be rather poisonous. Perhaps if her guests or her family feel as you do about her, my week-end won't be wasted—speaking from a professional standpoint."

"When you see Abbie Berkeley I guess you'll understand," Mrs. Rhodes assured him grimly. "If there's anything I can't abide, it's a nobody putting on airs like she was the queen of Roumania. I went to high school with Abbie Berkeley when she was Abbie Smith and didn't have three whole dresses or a real friend to her name, and now she stares at me through a lorgnette as if I was a strange species of insect she hadn't happened to run across before."

"Perhaps," Dundee suggested gently, "she was high-bred so thoroughly when she was a nobody that she is getting a sweet joy out of high-hatting others now."

"Huh!" Mrs. Rhodes snorted. "She'd a-had friends if she'd been worth anybody's time making friends with. A silly little sneak she was and a silly, over-dressed fat woman she's grown up to be! But where did you know Dick Berkeley? At college, I suppose?"

"Right!" Dundee agreed. "He was a freshman when I was a senior at Yale. I didn't know him very well, but naturally we greeted each other like chums when he bumped into me on Grand Street today."

"Did he tell you he got expelled from Yale for drinking and girl-chasing?" Mrs. Rhodes demanded from the door. "The papers said he'd left college on account of illness, but it didn't take long for the true story to get around."

Dundee grinned, but said nothing. He was remembering the shame-faced bravado with which young Dick had confessed: "Kicked out in my sophomore year. Drunk and disorderly. Particularly disorderly. The girl's name was Clara. It turned out she was nice—just as she'd claimed to be."

"WELL, I'll be going, if there's nothing more I can do for you," Mrs. Rhodes said. Then she added, her voice quivering: "I suppose you think I'm nothing but a loose-tongued old gossip—"

"You know I think nothing of the sort," Dundee protested. "I appreciate your giving me an introduction to my hostess, and to prove it, I'm going to ask you to tell me something more: Have the papers hinted at the real reason for Seymour Crosby's visit to the Berkeleys?"

"The society editor said in the paper this morning: 'A little bird tells me that a very interesting announcement may be expected by those fortunate enough to be among Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley's guests on Saturday evening. Mr. Seymour Crosby, who was a fellow-passenger of Mrs. George Berkeley and Miss Clorinda Berkeley when they returned from Europe on the Mauve-tania in August, is said to have been markedly attentive to the beautiful young heiress. . . . She might just as well have come right out and said that Seymour Crosby is marrying Clorinda Berkeley for her money.'"

"I wonder," Dundee said, carefully casual, "if the well-informed society editor said anything else particularly enlightening about Mr. Seymour Crosby?"

Hoover's Mountain School Is Opened

Dark Hollow, Va., Feb. 24—(AP)—Ray Burraker, the barefoot mountain boy who first interested President Hoover in the children in this mountain community, got up at five o'clock this morning to be the first to arrive for the opening of the Hoover school and was so excited that he forgot to eat breakfast.

Mr. Hoover decided to have the school established after he became interested in the children here as a result of young Burraker strolling in to his fishing camp near here one day last summer and presenting the President with a possum.

Besides Burraker about 20 pupils arrived for the opening of the school, the first in this neighborhood.

From the top of the little frame building, perched on the side of one of the steep mountains, an American flag fluttered today in the chilly air. It had been raised at sun-up by Burraker. His nine-year-old brother, George Harold Burraker, will have the honor of lowering the flag at sunset.

Over 60 Countries Now Treat Colds Without "Dosing"

Modern Vaporizing Ointment Fast Replacing Old-Time Internal Remedies.

A generation ago, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for colds and almost every human ailment. Then, a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds without "dosing." Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

As more and more people adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

This ever-increasing demand is shown in the figures of the familiar Vicks slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," and later raised to "21 Million," these figures, too, have been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly," in the United States alone.

STATE-WIDE ROAD- SIDE SYSTEM FOR MARKETS OUTLINED

Direct Selling Of Fruit And Vegetables Plan Of Sec. Durst

A state wide system of roadside markets for the direct selling of fruit and vegetables and other perishable farm produce was outlined at the Illinois Farmers Institute by C. E. Durst, the institute secretary last week.

Outlining the possibilities of the roadside market as an activity for farm women, Mr. Durst pictured a system of co-operatively owned markets, of uniform design and management.

"The great road system of Illinois," Mr. Durst said, "is providing contacts between producers and consumers which open up tremendous possibilities along this line."

"I believe that if the farm women of Illinois would direct their influence and efforts along this line we could develop in the state a cooperative roadside marketing system that would have far reaching effects. Thousands of dollars worth of products are sold in some roadside markets, and a series of markets of this kind, operating co-operatively, could become an important factor in creating demand and establishing prices in meeting the competition of producers farther removed from our markets, in handling the chain store problem and their depressing effect on prices of farm products, and in diversifying our production and thereby relieving the surplus production of staple crops."

"My suggestion is that the farm women of Illinois working in cooperation with their men folk lay plans to gradually develop a system of co-operatively owned and operated roadside markets. Individual ownership would be workable, but I believe cooperative ownership and operation would be preferable because better locations could then be obtained, a larger supply of products over a long season would be possible, and economies in operation would result."

"While I believe we should plan for a close working relationship between markets in time, I believe at the start the markets should be handled as separate propositions. However, there should be a working understanding between markets in order that a uniform system of standardization, advertising and operation might be developed."

"One of the important steps is that a distinctive type of market be developed, one that might easily be recognized as far as seen. For instance, I know of a market in Missouri that looks like a big red apple. We might, in Illinois, build our markets at reasonable cost on a Colonial plan with the pillars made of posts painted to represent ears of yellow corn."

"A distinctive type of market throughout the state would have great advertising value, provided that uniform methods were practiced throughout and that the markets in general gave good satisfaction to consumers. When such a condition were reached, consumers would patronize these markets wherever seen, knowing in advance the satisfaction would be certain."

"After the markets in individual communities were well established and well enough of them were within reasonable reach of each other, they could be brought into a cooperative relationship with each other."

If one market had certain products in excess, some of the surplus could be distributed by truck to the other markets. In time, there might be a cooperative relationship established even with grocers and cooperative shipping associations at a distance. For instance, roadside markets in central and northern Illinois could handle poultry products from the poultry cooperative, dairy products from the dairy cooperatives, fruits and vegetables from the shipping cooperatives in southern Illinois and so on."

"It would probably be advisable in time to have county or district warehouses in order that products could be more readily distributed."

"It is not beyond the possibility that in time the roadside markets could be extended into the larger cities and thereby made a means of supplying consumers with their wants the year round. This would be a decided advantage over supplying the needs at intervals only, as is possible through the average roadside market."

"I believe that such markets should be organized and financed so that they may buy products when necessary in the community or from growers as cooperatives at a distance who are working with the market on a cooperative plan. Under no circumstances should a market depend primarily for its supplies on products purchased and handled for profit. Such markets are not cooperative. They simply add to the complexity of our distributing system because they increase the number of our distributing system because they increase the number of middlemen and therefore the distribution cost. Furthermore, they are certain to incur the displeasures of growers in the community, who have a right to expect for themselves the roadside trade for their products in season.

"Markets of this kind should be owned and operated primarily by the producers in the communities in which they are located. The interested growers will then study their market closely, keep in constant touch with it, and endeavor to strengthen it in all ways possible."

"Usually such a market can be operated to excellent advantage by one of the interested growers or a member of his family. A series of markets built on this plan will prove a much more substantial proposition than markets owned by growers living at a distance, and the worries of a district manager in keeping a dependable, honest supply of help will be far less. By no means should markets of this kind be owned by producers at a great distance and operated for profit. Such methods are against principles of true cooperation."

"Good products, courteous salesmanship and a system of uniform distinctive markets in which uniform methods are used and satisfaction to consumers is given, will enable us to develop a great system of roadside markets in Illinois, and I believe the women, if they choose can play an important part in developing a system of markets of this kind. We now have the greatest road system in the country and I believe we also can have the greatest roadside system if we desire."

FEEDING FOR EGG PRODUCTION

By Lloyd Breisch.

For maximum egg production it is necessary not only that the right feeds be selected, but that they be fed in the right way. Feeding nothing but whole grain is one of the most common mistakes in poultry feeding. A complete ration for a laying hen must contain not only scratch feed or whole grain but also ground feeds, animal protein, green feed, mineral feed and water. When hens can be allowed to range, especially during the spring, they obtain a variety of feeds for themselves. During this time of the year most of the hens are kept in confinement. It then is necessary to supply a complete ration at all times.

The scratch feed should contain at least two and preferably three grains. Corn is the most important, and should make up five parts of the grain mixture. Wheat should make up about three parts of the scratch grain. Heavy oats should make up the two parts. If heavy oats are not available you may substitute barley. Two to four quarts of this grain mixture should be fed in the morning and about six to eight quarts in the evening to every hundred hens. The best practice is to feed the grain in litter such as wheat or oats straw four to five inches deep.

The mash should be fed the year round to get the maximum production from your hens. Egg production depends largely upon the amount of animal protein the hen is receiving, since the egg is quite high in protein. The most common sources of animal proteins are milk (in any form), meat scraps and tankage. It takes four gallons of milk daily for each hundred hens to supply them with protein. Meat scraps are the best protein feed for poultry.

A good home-made dry mash for poultry is as follows:

- 100 lb. of wheat bran.
- 100 lb. of flour middlings.
- 100 lbs. of ground yellow corn.
- 100 lbs. of ground heavy oats.
- 100 lbs. meat scraps.
- 2 1/2 lbs. salt.

This mash should be kept before the hens at all times in a dry mash feeder. A moist mash may be fed once a day, preferably at noon. The best practice in the use of moist mash seems to be to moisten the dry mash mixture with skimmed milk of butter milk, giving about what the hens will clean up in thirty minutes.

No ration can be considered complete without green feed or succulent feed. Some of the green or succulent feeds are cabbage, magel beets and sprouted oats.

When hens are in confinement as most flocks are at the present time it is necessary to supply commercial grit. Oyster shell should be kept before the hens at all times. Plenty of clean fresh water also should be before the hens at all times.

Farming Factors

BY JOSEPH S. WASNEY

United Press Agriculture Editor
Washington—(UP)—Farmers must use extraordinary care in selecting or purchasing clover and lespedeza seed for spring planting this year because much of the supply is full of weed seeds, according to the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Agriculture Department.

Above all else the farmer should use seed that will produce a clover crop—not a weed crop," the Bureau warned. "We can not urge too strongly the value of hardy home grown clover seed of adapted varieties for use wherever possible. This is especially true in sections where experience has shown the value of the disease-resistant strains of clover over imported strains or unadapted strains from other regions."

The so-called Tennessee resistant strain of red clover produced for several generations in infested territory without change of stock is known to have developed a high degree of resistance to clover anthracnose, and for this reason is especially adapted to the southern clover-growing sections."

A new factor of growing importance as affecting both demand for butter in importing countries and the surplus in butter exporting countries is the increasing consumption of butter substitutes in European countries, a survey made by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics showed.

Margarine consumption in Germany now exceeds butter consumption. In Denmark and Netherlands, the exportable surplus of butter is augmented by the use of margarine in home consumption. The increased use of butter substitutes in European countries is attributed in part to material improvement in the quality of European margarine.

"Foreign production of butter in recent years has followed much the same upward trend as that of the United States," the Bureau said.

"Relatively low American butter prices during much of the past year have discouraged imports into the United States and produced a slight export balance. New Zealand butter shipments to Canada continue to increase, but of the Canadian cream and milk thus displaced some 20 per cent less than in the previous year was sold in the United States in 1929."

Other factors enumerated by the Bureau in the current international dairy situation included facts that United States imports of Swiss cheese are increasing while the American output of Swiss cheese shows a corresponding decline; butter production in Switzerland is being encouraged to relieve overproduction of cheese.

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago, Ill. —(AP)—The cattle market has fallen into a seasonal trend which indicates smaller supplies from now on, the Prairie Farmer's Weekly market review said. "Prices are unlikely to advance as much as they did in 1929 as steers are higher now than they were a year ago," the review said. "The demand for beef, also, is poorer. Demand for thin cattle for feeding purposes and for grazing is less than a year ago."

"Hog prices have had a 2c advance since the low point in December and a further rise is expected in the next thirty days with probably occasionally setbacks of short duration. Slaughter is behind the corresponding period of 1929. In spite of smaller exports, stocks in storage are not accumulating."

"Lamb prices are $3 under the early January prices, and are the lowest at this period since 1921. Feeders in the West appear to be afraid of future conditions and are rushing in their lambs in order to stabilize conditions in the future. Wool prices are steady to weak. In foreign markets there is more strength and this is reviving confidence in the trade.

"Importing countries are expected to take wheat at a more rapid rate in the next few months than in the last half year, but there is no question about the adequacy of supplies. Under these conditions, the course of prices will naturally be strongly dependent on the new crop outlook. If news indicates a large crop, the Federal Farm Board's newly organized stabilization corporation probably will prevent declines below recent low points, at least until late in the season."

"Corn prices have executed a turn to higher prices, although there is no certainty of much advance. The rally in wheat, the moderate and visible supply-fairly active demand, and the fact that the heavy shipping season will be over in three or four weeks were the principal strengthening influences."

"Hay markets were more liberally supplied last week and prices were reduced in order to keep stocks moving."

"Fresh egg production, as measured by receipts at leading market from day to day, dominate the market right now. Values advanced rapidly last week during a temporary short spell, but declined again when supplies showed evidence of increasing."

"Butter markets have held steady at slightly higher prices during the past week. The effect of lower prices is beginning to show on receipts. There is still a large surplus of storage butter hanging over the market, amounting to 35.4 million pounds on February 1 compared with the same date a year ago, but much of this stock has moved into strong hands, and indications are the present owners will carry much of this butter over into the new butter season rather than sell at current prices."

Farm Board Sees Production Loans As Next Demand

By FRANK I. WELER

(Associated Press Feature Service)
Washington —(AP)—It has become known unofficially that members of the federal farm board have held informal discussions of an approaching demand for "production credit," a form of farm financing alien to the board's current practice of loaning money for marketing purposes only.

Representative Kemp of Louisiana has notified his constituents that he has asked the board for a plan whereby advances can be made to strawberry and vegetable growers of his district to help meet the costs of producing their crops.

The request is considered a forerunner of others that may result in the board considering the use of government funds to help cooperatives maintain subsidiary "finance corporations" through which production credit may be extended.

Cooperatives can, and some have, set up such subsidiaries themselves, investing their capital in securities to be used as collateral in borrowing as much as 10 times the amount of the capital from intermediate credit banks.

The board is brought into the picture on the theory of growing demands for the use of federal funds as capital.

The board is understood to be inclined to restrict its activities should any be authorized, to finance corporations the national commodity marketing associations might organize.

There has been some discussion of such a subsidiary for the American cotton cooperative association.

Unquestionably, farm board participation would inject the provision that farmers to whom production credit was extended agree to market their crop through the cooperative.

To secure crop lien notes they would be requested to give, there is a probability that the board, through the cooperative, would request farmers to follow certain cultural methods necessary to successful production.

TREES SHOULD BE PLANTED ON FARM WASTE ACREAGE

Director of Forest Experimental Station Gives Advice

Illinois farmers should plant their hilly swampy or other infertile lands in trees and at a later date they will realize a substantial profit from their otherwise waste acres. E. F. McCarthy, director of the Central States Forest experiment station at Columbus, O., told the Farmer's Institute at Galesburg.

Trees provide the best means to utilize poor ground because, there is now and will later be a good market for lumber, he said.

"Illinois can use the entire lumber production from 8,000,000 acres of well-stocked forest land without a per capita increase in the consumption of lumber," Mr. McCarthy declared. "The eastern states cannot supply the timber required by markets for a large part of her timber building materials."

"It is thus evident that the market price of lumber in Illinois will be determined by the cost of such lumber laid down in the state after manufacture in the Pacific Coast states. A material increase in the price of lumber in the Middle West may be expected as the supply of available building lumber becomes more inaccessible in the coast region."

"These facts give assurance that a satisfactory market will exist for all the soft timber that can be produced here."

Mr. McCarthy's observations of timber conditions in Illinois are particularly apropos because the recently made a survey here when consulted by the state in connection with the recent purchase of the large timber tract in Union county for experimental and demonstration purposes.

"The annual lumber bill of Illinois," he said, "is in excess of a hundred million dollars. This is nearly half the total value of the corn crop of the state in an average year. The freight bill upon lumber alone amounted in 1924 to $11.19 per thousand feet of lumber used or total freight bill of 29,100,000 dollars. This exceeds the total value of the wheat crop of the state in 1928."

An item of consequence to the farmer in trying to balance his earnings against his expenses found in the $152.67 which was average outlay for forest products used on the farm in 1924 as shown by reports from 54,870 farms in Illinois.

Seed Certification Is Progressing Well

Characterizing the progress seed certification as phenomenal, Prof. J. C. Hackleman, chief in extension work at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, told the Illinois Farmers' Institute in the past ten years certified seed has come to be a recognized measure of seed quality in most states.

Thirty states are now actively engaged in some phase of the service, the real functions of which is to increase the quantity available to growers and at the same time maintain the quality of seed of the best varieties and kinds, Prof. Hackleman said.

"The plant breeder, when he has a new creation ready for the market, usually has a small amount of seed for distribution," the speaker said. "The seed certification service offered by the Crop Improvement Association is the best known method for the rapid dissemination of the quality seed, and at the same time insuring the purchaser of genuineness."

"That this service is needed is evidenced by the fact that many promising strains of seed grain produced in the past have been practically lost because of no method checking up on purity and quality. That farmers can well afford to consider certified seed is evidenced by the fact that last year when demand for Illinois soybean seed was very active and the supply relatively small, many lots of soybeans of seed as Illinois were sent into the Crop Improvement Association and to the University for identification. The samples proved to be practically everything from Ito San, which requires 90 days to mature, to Mar moth Yellow, requiring 145 to 150 days for maturity."

MR. DAIRY FARMER--

At the present price of milk, it is costing you approximately 25c per day to raise a calf if you feed it whole milk. At this rate you are putting into that calf about $10.50 worth of whole milk over a period of six weeks. Now if you could sell that amount of milk and raise your calves equally as well on a substitute through those six weeks, thus saving that $10.50, you'd do it.

We are in a position to show you how to save that amount, simply by using Mor-Milk Food.

Here it is—one 25-lb. galvanized pail of Mor-Milk Food is sufficient to feed TWO calves for six weeks, costing you approximately $1.88 per calf for the six weeks or from 4c to 5c per day per calf. Feeding starts the third day.

Mor-Milk Food is guaranteed to raise your calves equally as well as whole milk and if you are not satisfied with the results given by this product your money will be returned.

Mor-Milk can be secured from the following companies. Instruct your hauler to bring you a pail.

Wiremakers Win Title In Industrial Cage Loop Last Evening

Reynolds Wire Co. 26; Bales and Wilhelm 14.
I. N. U. Co. 20; American Body and Cab 16.
By Robert Lesage

The Wiremakers completely subdued the Bales & Wilhelm outfit last evening at the new high school gymnasium, in the game which determined the championship for the first round of the Industrial Basketball League. The I. N. U. five, the team tied with the Reynolds Wire Co. for the second round of the league series, will meet the wiremen in the near future in a contest to break this tie. The winner of this last game will then be the undisputed champion for the league this year. The Reynolds aggregation acquired the beautiful loving cup offered to the victors last year, and have no desire to lose their grasp on it this season. The Illinois Northern Utilities men kept themselves in trim last evening by taking into tow the had fighting Cab Co. outfit.

The major arrangement of the evening was the Reynolds Wire Co. vs. the Bales & Wilhelm quintet. The Reynolds were playing quiet to form and at no time during the contest was their lead endangered. The Bales outfit have been badly crippled due to the loss of their center, John Kennedy who has returned to school and although Place played a fine game at this position he was unable to equal the invincible works shown by Thomas of the Reynolds cagers. Although the Bales bunch tried hard they were forced to submit to the drastic mauling about at the hands of their opponents, 26 to 14. Thomas and Johnson were tied for position of high point man with 9 points each. Thomas accounted for his on 4 field goals and a free throw while Johnson was not as successful from the floor, caging but 3 baskets but made good 3 attempts from the foul ring. Roundy played a good game for the Barbers accounting for 2 floor shots and a free throw making a total of 5 points while Jones and Whitcomb were right behind with 3 points each. The teams lined up as follows:

Reynolds Wire Co.	B.	F.	P.	T.P.
Johnson, F.	3	3	0	9
Joyce, F.	0	2	0	0
Thompson, F.	0	1	1	1

I. N. U. Victors

The American Body and Cab Co. gave the I. N. U. five just about all the fight they wanted last evening and almost a little more. It was not till within two minutes of the end of the contest that the I. N. U. Co. tied the score 14 to 14 and then finally caged the two winning baskets. The Cab makers swung into what everyone thought would be an easy lead and the end of the first quarter, half, and third quarter were at the head. The I. N. U. Co. sensing the humiliation of such a defeat got into a terrifying attitude that finally netted them two field goals and a soothing 20 to 16 victory. Hilliker, Lebre, and Schertner all played a great game for the I. N. U. team. Lebre accounting for 3 sensational floor shots and two free throws, while Hilliker was in the rear with, but a bang up game for the Cab makers, caging 3 pretty field goals and a free throw, his nearest rival being Underwood who made but one field goal but was even as to their success at the foul circle. The teams lined up as follows:

I. N. U. Co.	B.	F.	P.	T.P.
Hilliker, F.	3	1	1	7

Retiring British Envoy Leaves Capital

Closing his diplomatic career, Sir Eme Howard—for six years British ambassador to the United States—is pictured above, with Mrs. Howard, as they departed from Washington for New York en route to England. High government officials and foreign diplomats gathered at the railroad station to bid farewell to the distinguished envoy who, at 66, has retired under the British age law. He will be succeeded as ambassador by Sir Ronald Lindsay.

SHE CAN EAT ANY THING SHE WANTS
THANKS TO GLY-CAS

Stubborn Stomach and Bowel Disorder Quickly Yields to New Gly-Cas.

"I began using Gly-Cas a few weeks ago and during this time it accomplished for me what no other medicine ever did. It completely banished my stomach and bowel disorder of years," said Mrs. George Taylor, 520 West Washington St., Ottawa, Ill., recently in a statement praising Gly-Cas.

"My system steadily grew worse and I finally had to restrict my foods to those easily digested in order to eat at all," continued Mrs. Taylor. "Then my stomach got in such a condition that anything I ate caused me distress, gas formed and pressed against my heart and I would have an awful burning sensation in my stomach. I was also constantly bothered with constipation. The Gly-Cas appeared to me principally because people I knew were endorsing it any saying it was far different from all other preparations."

"Today I can eat any foods I want any my stomach does not cause me any distress at all. I am no longer bothered with constipation either as Gly-Cas has regulated my bowels and whole system and restored my health again after years of trying in vain to get relief from other medicines. My appetite is good now and I feel better than I have for years. The benefits I have received from Gly-Cas has convinced me that it is no ordinary medicine, but a wonderful remedy."

Uncover Big Still Quite Accidentally

Chicago, Feb. 25—(AP)—Seven big, a huge still and quite 10,000-gallon vats filled with mash, were found last night on South Michigan Avenue, half a mile from federal prohibition headquarters and on the edge of the loop district.

The distillers had disposed of their cooked-out mash down a sewer. Heavy rains and melting snows had caused the sewer to back up. The odor of fermented grain filled the air. Federal agents finally traced the odor to a large garage.

Fires were still burning, but the stills were deserted. The value of the whiskey-making equipment was estimated at $50,000.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, New York typist, married ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the publishing house where she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, and son, JUNIOR, 16. Tony denounces Judith as a gold digger. When Judith comes home for Christmas holidays he is equally unfriendly. ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has aided, takes a position with the publishing firm. He is in love with Tony and calls on her frequently. Tony tries to convince her father that Judith and Andy are carrying on an affair. When this fails she tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Tony is carrying on a flirtation with MICKY, who is M. E. H. wealthy and married. Tony and her father quarrel over this but the girl is determined. Knight becomes dangerously ill with pneumonia. Junior comes home and stays until his father begins to recuperate. Before leaving the boy admits to Judith he has misjudged her.

Tony intercepts a letter intended for Judith and later follows her into the city where she sees her first marriage was a failure. Judith goes into New York. After days of misery she decides to return and tell Arthur the truth. She arrives at the house, but her father and he are coldly why she has come. He refuses to listen to explanations and says the marriage was a failure. Judith rushes from the house and goes to Dan's rooming house. She agrees to stay with Dan. Days pass during which Tony presides in her father's home. When Mortimer fails to keep an appointment with her she becomes infuriated, goes to his apartment and finds him there with another girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVII

RAGE had mastered Tony Knight. Her lips were trembling but she did not speak. She stared from the lovely blond-haired girl on the davenport to Mortimer, still smiling sneeringly. His composure had disarmed her.

"I hate you!" screamed Tony at the man. "Oh I hate you!"

Mickey Mortimer turned solicitously toward the other girl.

"I beg your pardon," he said to her. "Will you excuse me, please? There seems to be some sort of—er—disturbance. It won't take a minute."

Tony interrupted quickly.

"Oh, don't think you'll get rid of me so easily. I won't go!"

Mortimer straightened his shoulders. He eyed her directly and coolly.

"Since you insist upon having the truth, bluntly, Miss Knight," he said, "allow me to tell you once and for all that my engagements, private or business, are not your affair. Furthermore, I do not recall inviting you here. Good afternoon."

Tony would not be stilled. She glared at Mortimer as her words came in a torrent.

"So you admit it, do you? You admit you lied to me. Playing around with your little blond friend here. Let me tell you something, Mr. Mickey Mortimer, and see that you remember it. I hate you! I loathe you! I never want to see your face again! And if you were the last man on earth I'd never speak to you!"

She stamped her foot.

Mortimer's back was toward her. "Tell me, Fritz," he was saying to the blond girl, "what was the name of that song you liked so much last night? The one that went ta-da-da-DEE-da—you remember, don't you?"

"Oh!" Tony Knight choked. "Oh—!"

It was all she could manage to say. Her fury was inexpressible. For several minutes she waited, forgetting to ring for the elevator. It came at last. Tony stepped into the car and was swept downward. By the time she had reached the ground floor her power of speech had returned.

She scolded, mumbling to herself, all the way down the street to where she had parked the roadster. Tony stepped into the car, swerved away from the curb and into the stream of traffic. It did not mollify her spirit any that the street was crowded.

ONE block distant she was halted by a traffic signal. As Tony waited two large teardrops appeared on her cheek. She brushed them aside furiously.

Dusk had settled before Tony arrived home. Paint trailers of brilliant color still marked the western sky but the orange sun had disappeared.

Her father was reading in the living room. He glanced up as she appeared in the doorway.

"Ready in 10 minutes," she called and hurried up the stairs.

A subdued and thoughtful Tony sat opposite her father at the dinner table that evening. She had little to say and did not notice that Arthur Knight, too, seemed preoccupied.

TWENTY-FOUR hours later

Knight was again alone in the living room of the big house. Sandy, the little Scotch terrier, at his master's feet gazed up wistfully. Sandy had been doing that now quite regularly.

"Guess you're lonesome, too, old fellow, aren't you?" Knight said as he stooped and rubbed the scruff of the dog's neck. "Is that what's the matter? Is it?"

The doorbell rang sharply. Knight listened, removed his glasses and frowned. Without waiting for the maid to answer, he hurried into the hall. Sandy followed as far as the doorway.

Arthur Knight threw open the door.

"How do you do?" he said stiffly. "Come in, won't you?"

Knight stepped back, and Andy Craig entered the house. Andy's contagious smile had kindled instantly.

"Good evening, Mr. Knight," he said. "Just dropped in, hoping I might find you here."

The young man stood, hat in hand, fidgeting awkwardly. He seemed to sense his reception was not altogether a welcome one. The color in his cheeks deepened.

"Here—leave your coat and come in and sit down, won't you? Tony was around here 10 minutes ago."

Knight said, "Don't know where she's gone to."

"Thanks."

Both men sat down, and for several moments there was an awkward pause. Then Craig spoke:

"Mr. Knight, there's something I want to talk to you about."

"H-h-mm—perhaps I can guess—"

Craig crossed his knees. Then he recrossed them.

WEED MENACE IS SPREADING OVER ILLINOIS

Buffalo Bur and Russian Thistle are Entering The State

Weeds which cause an annual loss of one billion dollars to crops in the United States are invading and spreading over Illinois at a dangerous rate. Dr. J. J. Pieper, assistant chief of crop production at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture told the Illinois Farmers' Institute last week.

Representing 10 per cent of the value of the crops, the crop loss is probably equal to or greater than that caused by plant diseases or insects or animals like rodents and birds, Dr. Pieper said.

That the weeds are spreading at an alarming rate in Illinois is illustrated by the fact that in the last ten years wild garlic has reached central Illinois in the wheat growing regions along the Illinois River, he said. It originally was introduced less than 50 years ago in the southwestern part of the state and now covers the entire southern third of Illinois.

Surveys of the Canada thistle and Quack grass show the same tendency, Pieper reported. Formerly confined to the northern part of the state, these two weeds have now spread to the southern sections while Johnson grass, originally a southern pest, has spread as far north as Iowa.

The sow thistle and western weeds like Buffalo Bur and Russian thistle are entering the state at a rapid rate, Pieper said.

Dr. Pieper questioned whether weeds could be entirely eliminated from a farm. "The few experiments which have been conducted by keeping a piece of land free from weeds for a period of years have revealed the land still continues to produce weeds in great abundance."

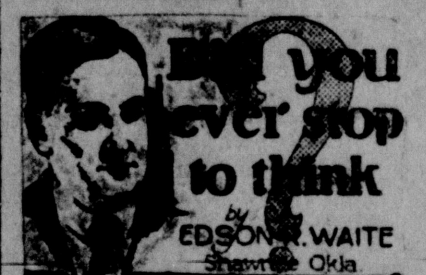

Blasting the farmers' hopes that they may be able to rid their land of weeds in a short time, Dr. Pieper said that if they prevented the introduction of weed seeds to their farms at the present time and also prevented weeds from going to seed it would be a great many years before all of the weeds which are now in the soil germinated.

"Weed seeds," he said, "seem to have the ability to lie dormant in the soil for a great many years. Records of 25 and 50 years are common. There are some results which appear reliable in which weed seeds have layed dormant in the soil for more than 100 years."

Among the principal means of distribution of the weed seeds, Dr. Pieper mentioned the scattering by water, particularly in overflow land, and through the purchase of impure seeds. He said that at least three-fourths of the worst weeds in Illinois have been imported from foreign countries.

Prevention, rather than eradication, should be considered by Illinois farmers, Dr. Pieper advised. He said that a cheap chemical which would eradicate noxious weeds has never been found. The chlorates probably come as near to this demand as anything on the market, he said.

THAT a whole lot of people get the habit of spending money too freely, without thought for TOMORROW.

They indulge in too many luxuries which their incomes will not stand; they seem to have no thought for the future. Of course, it is their money and they have a right to spend it, but they have no right to forget TOMORROW.

Most of them are gaining much experience and what they call "joy," but what about TOMORROW?

If they would slow down, live within their incomes and save, they would be happier TOMORROW.

Now is the time for these people to re-adjust their way of living and start in to spend their money judiciously. It may be too late TOMORROW.

Money made honestly should be spent honestly. Throwing it away to gratify every wish and to indulge in things that they cannot afford only brings grief TOMORROW.

PEOPLE, LIKE CITIES, SHOULD BUILD FOR TOMORROW!

Southern College Honoring Edison

Winter Park, Fla., Feb. 24—(UP)—Thomas Alva Edison, 83-year-old world famous inventor, received the honorary academic degree of Doctor of Science here today from Rollins College, which celebrated the event with a Founders' Week convocation.

"Living Immortal" was the term applied to the inventor by Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of the college, in awarding the degree.

"No institution in America can add to your name or fame by any title or honor it can bestow," the president said.

"Rollins college, therefore, must rest content with honoring itself by conferring upon you the degree of doctor of science."

START PORKERS GET DETERMINING INFLUENCE

Should Be Able to Get Into Self-Feeder During Early Life

The kind of start a pig gets in the suckling period determines largely whether or not it will be a profitable pork animal, professor C. M. Vestal, of the animal experiment station of Purdue University told delegates to the annual Farmers' Institute at Galesburg last week.

"During the suckling period, the pig has the best chance when it can go to the self-feeder and help itself to a good ration," Professor Vestal said. "This ration may be made up chiefly of home grown grains, but here too the protein and mineral feeds play an important part in making it a success. Forty pounds shelled corn, 40 pounds coarsely ground corn, 20 pounds wheat shorts, or coarsely ground oats with the hulls sifted out, and 10 pounds of tankage mixed and fed through the self-feeder is an inexpensive ration that makes the pigs grow."

"A good mineral mixture made up of 5 pounds of finely pulverized limestone or limestone dust, 5 pounds special steamed bone meal and 1 pound of common salt fed separate from the grain ration in a self-feeder is a good insurance policy for a growing pig."

"From weaning to market is not as critical a time as the suckling period for the average pig, but here again the ration comes in for important consideration. The fact that corn and the other farm grains are not adequately supplied with proteins and minerals to meet the needs of growing pigs or fattening hogs presents the problem of securing suitable supplementary feeds to balance the grain ration."

"The limited supplies of animal protein feeds, such as tankage, fish meal and milk, permit them to sell at apparently high prices. As a result of this situation, feeders are combining cheaper vegetable feeds as soybeans, soybean oilmeal, cottonseed meal, linseed oilmeal and alfalfa meal with the more efficient animal protein feeds."

The result is a happy circumstance because the combination of protein feeds is often not only cheaper but more efficient than where a single protein feed is used to supplement the grain.

"Soybeans offer a cheap source of home grown protein feed that may be had in abundance on Corn Belt farms. However, certain limitations in soybean feeding must be considered. Heavy feeding of soybeans produces pork that lacks the most desirable degree of firmness. This is an objectionable feature from the standpoint of handling and selling

STUDENTS CAN'T TELL RAW FROM PASTEURIZED MILK
Boulder, Colo.—(AP)—Pasteurized and raw milk is all the same to students at the University of Colorado. So far as taste is concerned, they cannot tell one from the other.

Twenty-one students of a journalism class tested themselves, blindfolded, in a milk-drinking experiment. Crusading for pasteurized milk in Boulder, they tried to ascertain whether raw milk tasted differently.

Milk was served four times, with only one drink pasteurized. Most of the class declared the third drink was raw milk, whereas it was the only pasteurized milk offered. Students were unable to tell which was which with any degree of accuracy.

Wilkins On Way Back From The Antarctic

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 24—(UP)—Results of his expedition to the Antarctic were disclosed in part here today by Sir George Robert Wilkins, Australian explorer, returned from Deception Island.

Wilkins expressed particular satisfaction at the discovery he reported of two new islands. He said he also had proof that southern Polar areas heretofore charted as land were water.

The flier said he hoped future geographic research would be made from meteorological bases in the Antarctic to be established in accordance with his studies.

Wilkins said he probably would not return to the Antarctic next year. He proposes to go to the North Pole by submarine.

Wilkins planned to fly to Buenos Aires today to sell the planes he has been using on his recent expedition. He will sail for New York on the steamer Eastern Prince next Friday.

Appeal Snook Case To Supreme Court

Washington, Feb. 24—(UP)—Associate Justice McReynolds of the Supreme Court was asked today for a stay of execution to postpone election of James Howard Snook, former Ohio State University professor. Snook is scheduled to die Friday for the murder last June of Miss Theora Hix, his co-ed sweetheart.

Arthur M. Spiegel, one of Snook's attorneys, presented the plea at McReynolds' home before the court convened.

E. O. Ricketts, another of the condemned man's attorneys, was to go before the Supreme Court later to apply for admittance to the Supreme Court bar and file a formal appeal.

AGAIN KONJOLA TRIUMPHS OVER STUBBORN CASE

Happy Woman Tells of New Health Brought by New Medicine After Suffering 22 Years.

MRS. CHAS. HART.

"Before I took Konjola my condition was so bad that I was about ready to give up," said Mrs. Chas. Hart, 812 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, Ill. "My kidneys were so weak that it was necessary for me to rise six or seven times during the night. My eyes were puffy in the mornings. I had sharp pains in my back, and my ankles and hands were swollen. This condition brought on extreme nervousness. I lost my appetite and my digestion became impaired."

"But Konjola came to my rescue. I learned of this medicine from a friend and am certainly glad I decided to try it. Although I have only taken a short treatment, my kidneys are acting normally. The pains have left my back and night rising is a thing of the past. My nerves have quieted and I am gaining back my lost weight and strength."

Konjola is sold in Dixon, Ill., at FORD HOPKINS DRUG STORE, 123 W. First St., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.
